Non-probability sampling method used to 207,000 followers Gulp Indonesia. To test the reliability of the data, it was carried out pre-test on 30 respondents and validity, reliability and normality tests were carried out. Study this also does data analysis using analysis correlational, simple linear regression, and coefficient determination.

D. RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

Characteristics Respondent

In results study this, respondent study with type sex man amounting to 33% or 33 respondents and respondents with type sex Woman amounting to 67% or 67 respondents. Based on characteristics age, 15-20 years amounting to 15% or 15 respondents, total respondents aged 21-25 years amounting to 79% or 79 respondents, total respondents aged 26-30 years amounting to 6% or 6 respondents, and the number respondents aged 31-35 years of 0% or 0. Viewed from from characteristics work, the majority respondents in study This as many as 71 people with the percentage of 71% is student or student. Then 22 people with the percentage of 22% is employees, 4 people with the percentage of 4% is self-employed or businessman, 3 people with a percentage of 3% is other.
Validity and Reliability Test Study

Validity test

In variable X (4C Elements in Instagram) with a total of 17 statements get more calculated r values big from table r value. So with that, you can explained that the 17 statements above has exceed value 0.361 so can concluded that 17 statements in questionnaire study this is valid. For variable Y (Formation Brand Image) with a total of 13 statements also received more calculated r values big from table r value. So with that, you can explained that 13 statements on has exceed value 0.361 so can concluded that 13 statements in questionnaire study this is valid.

Reliability Test

Researchers also conducted reliability tests, results variable X with a total of 17 items shows mark Cronbach Alpha worth 0.922. On the results of the reliability test Y variable with a total of 13 value items Cronbach Alpha worth 0.905. Second matter this show that statements from variables X and Y have pass value 0.70 and meets condition reliable so the data above can stated reliable or reliable.

Normality test

Researcher using the normality test with method Kolmogorov Smirnov obtained normality test results with value 0.20. so can stated that the data is in study this normally distributed because own mark more significant big than 0.05 (0.05<0.20).

Analysis Correlational

Correlational tests are also used with results is on level strong relationship namely 0.792 and direction connection the positive. So with so, increasingly increasing use 4C elements in Instagram carried out by Teguk Indonesia then brand image will also the more formed.

Equality Simple Linear Regression

Result of equality simple linear regression from study This can explained as following:

\[ Y = a + bX \]

\[ Y = 18.566 + 0.532X \]

From the results equality that, you can is known that variable X (4C Elements in Instagram) is worth 0.532. So, it means that every additional 1% rate variable X (4C Elements in Instagram), then variable Y (formation brand image) will increase of 0.532 times. Viewed from mark coefficient regression that has mark positive so can concluded that variable X (4C Elements in Instagram) has an effect.

Analysis Coefficient Determination

Based on coefficient test results determinations made to 100 respondents, yes seen that big mark correlation (R) ie of 0.792 which is significant level relationship strong, then obtained coefficient determination (R Square) of 0.628, figure the used For see percentage contribution variable X against variable Y with count mark coefficient determination use formula following:

\[ KD = R^2 \times 100\% \]
KD = 0.6282 x 100% = 62.8%

Based on mark coefficient determination obtained show mark contribution between 4C elements in Instagram against Formation Brand Image amounting to 62.8%. So that can interpreted that connection between variable X (4C Elements in Instagram) has an effect to variable Y (Formation Brand Image) amounting to 62.8% and the remainder influenced by factors other.
